GET YOUR HANDS DIRTY IN A “FUN” WAY Dabble in Pottery at the Lake Eustis Institute’s Spring Dabbler Series

EUSTIS – How many of us have thought it might be fun to take a block of clay, a pail of water, and a potter’s wheel and create something --- a bowl, a pot, a pitcher, a platter, even a human figure?

The Lake Eustis Institute is partnering with the Lake Eustis Arts Accord this spring to offer pottery lessons to anyone who ever wanted to dabble with clay. Master potters are on hand to instruct and encourage, and at the end of the lesson the student gets to take the creations home.

Pottery has been made of over 30,000 years. It is believed the earliest pottery was formed from earth and fired on bonfires. 10,000 years ago the Mesopotamians created the potter’s wheel and baked their pottery in ovens. This ancient art has not changed much since then, and people still find the creation of pottery a very satisfying experience.

The first pottery class offered by the Lake Eustis Arts Accord will be Saturday March 8 from 1-5 PM at the Arts Accord Pottery Studio, 205 N. Grove Street, Eustis. The cost is $100 for four hours of instruction, all supplies, and whatever the student creates. Class size is limited. Call the Lake Eustis Institute at 352.357.3995 to enroll.
